

Liudmila V. Alexandrova is a Doctor of Arts and a Professor at the Composition Department of the Novosibirsk State M.I. Glinka Conservatory. The sphere of her research interests includes the theory and history of the art of music from Antiquity to the present time. She has written numerous research works, including her monographic book: “Poryadok i simmetriya v muzykalnom iskusstve: logiko-istoricheskiy aspekt” [“Order and Symmetry in the Art of Music: a Logical-Historical Aspect”] (Novosibirsk, 1995).

Irina V. Alexeyeva holds a degree of Doctor of Arts and is a Professor and the Chair of the Music Theory Department at the Ufa State Zaghir Ismaghilov Academy of the Arts. She is a member of the Dissertation Council at the Magnitogorsk State M. I. Glinka Conservatory. She defended her dissertation for the Candidate of Arts (PhD) degree in 2002 while being a Research Associate of the Research Laboratory for the Problems of Musical Semantics at the State Institute of Art Studies in Moscow, and in 2006 she defended her dissertation for the Doctor of Arts degree at the Novosibirsk State M. I. Glinka Conservatory. She is the author of the monographic work “The Typology of Basso Ostinato Themes in the Instrumental Music of the Western-European Baroque” (Ufa, 2005). Her field of research interests includes issues of the semantic organization of musical text, as well as those of musical poetics, semiotics and the problem of interaction between the musical text and the performer.

Mark G. Aranovsky (1928–2009) was a Russian musicologist, a Merited Activists of the Arts of Russia, a Doctor of Arts, Professor and the Head of the Section for Contemporary Issues of the Art of Music of the State Institute for Art Studies (2003–2009). His major research works are devoted to the history and present-day practice of Russian symphonic music. He has written a number of monographic books, including “Melodika Prokofieva” [“The Melodicism of Prokofiev”] (1969), “Simfonicheskiye iskaniya” [“The Symphonic Search”] (1979), “Sintakticheskaya struktura melodii” [“The Syntactic Structure of Melody”] (1991) and “Muzykalnyy tekst. Struktura i svoystva” [“The Musical Text. Structure and Characteristics”] (1998).

Beslan G. Ashkhotov is the Pro-Rector for Studies at the North-Caucasian State Institute of Arts, Doctor of Arts, corresponding member of the Adygei (Circassian) Academy of Sciences, member of the Composers’ Union of the Russian Federation, Professor at the Music History and Music Theory Department of the North Caucasus State Institute of Arts and the author of monographic books, “Traditional Adygei Lament Song, the Ghybza” and “Adygei Folk Music Polyphony”. He has had more than a hundred publications of his research works in the field of general musicology, ethnomusicology and culturology. His scholarly interests are related to the theory and history of folk music and poetic creativity, the professional music of Kabardino-Balkarian composers, studies of regional musical folklore, as well as issues of musical and culturological education. He has been one of the first musicologists to research specific features of Adygei (Circassian) folk songs and to determine the ontological principles of the social, moral, ethnic and aesthetic significance and self-determination of the genre of folk music. By involving a comparative method of analysis in the context of artistic performance throughout the Caucasus region, the author puts forward his hypothesis of autochthonic quality of the solo chorus form of Adygei folk songs.

Galiya R. Bayazitova is a faculty member at the Department of Popular and Jazz Performance and Recording, a post-graduate student at the Ethnomusicology Department of the Ufa State Zagir Ismagilov Academy for the Arts, and the main sound engineer of the television company “Vsyä Ufa” [All of Ufa]. She has participated in international, regional and research-practical conferences. Her monographic work “Uzliäu kak fenomen muzykalno ispolnitsl'skogo iskusstva bashkir” [The Uzliäu as a phenomenon of Musical Performing Art of the Bsshkirs” (2009). The sphere of her research interests includes the problems of setting of voices, the acoustics of the voice and speech, the acoustic law of perception and the mechanisms of phonation. She is a certified trainer at the Russian music school “Revival of the Natural Voice.”

Lyudmila P. Belozyor is a Candidate of Pedagogical Sciences (PhD), Acting Associate Professor of the Section of the Arts of the Department of History and the Arts at the Kostonai State Pedagogical Institute. She graduated from the Alma-Ata State Kurmangazy Conservatory as a pianist and the post-graduate programs of the Ural State M.P. Mussorgsky Conservatory (Ekaterinburg) and the Ural State Pedagogical University. She participated in international musicological conferences (Kazakhstan, Russia, USA). The sphere of her research interests is in the art of piano playing, instrumental music, musical pedagogy and psychology.

Mark M. Berlyanchik is a Doctor of Arts, Professor, Academician at the International Academy of Information, Merited Activist of the Arts of Russia, Cavalier of the Order of Honor, and Deputy Chairman of the United Dissertation Committee at the Magnitogorsk State M.I. Glinka Conservatory. The formation of his professional and academic activities took place at the Novosibirsk State Conservatory, where he traversed the path from a faculty member of the Violin and Chamber music Departments to the Head of the Department of Musical Pedagogy. He participated actively in the foundation and organization of the Magnitogorsk State Conservatory, the Togliatti Conservatory, the Arctic Institute of Culture and the Arts, and the Advanced School of Music of the Republic of Sakha (Yakutia). During the 40 years of his scholarly research activities he wrote a large number of theoretical and methodological works in the sphere of the art of violin playing, musical performance and education.

Yuri E. Boyko holds a degree of Candidate of Arts (PhD) and is a Senior Research Assistant at the Instrumentation Theory Department of the Russian Institute for the History of the Arts (St. Petersburg)

Irina P. Dabayeva is a Candidate of Arts (PhD) and a Professor at the Music Theory and Composition Department of the Rostov State S.V. Rachmaninoff Conservatory. Her musical interests include Russian sacred music, as well as problems of harmony and musical management. Among her published works are scholarly articles devoted to the problems of music theory, Russian sacred music and musical management.

Vladislav E. Devutsky is a Doctor of Arts, Professor at the Music Theory Department of the Voronezh State Academy for the Arts, Merited Worker of the Highest School of the Russian Federation and member of the Composers' Union of Russia. He is a specialist in the field of harmony (which he teaches in a course devoted to musical styles), musical analysis and musical acoustics. He has written research works on musical phrasing and musical dramaturgy.

Galina N. Dombrauskiene holds a degree of Candidate of Arts (PhD) and is an Associate Professor at the Department of History of the Arts and Culture of the Admiral G.I. Nevelsky Maritime State University (Vladivostok). She is engaged in researching the musical semiotic structures of the Protestant chorale and their inter-textual interactions. On the basis of her dissertation for the Candidate of Arts degree she wrote her monographic work "Metatext protestantskogo khorala v prostranstve muzykalnoy kultury" ["The Meta-Text of the Protestant Chorale in the Domain of Musical Culture"], which was published in 2006. During her present work on her dissertation for the degree of Doctor of Arts she wrote a book "Metatext protestantskogo khorala: semioticheskiy kontinuum v muzykalnoy culture zapada i vostoka" ["The Meta-Text of the Protestant Chorale: the Semiotic Continuum in the Musical Cultures of the West and the East"], which was published in LAP LAMBERT Academic Publishing GmbH (Germany) (2012). She has written over 40 articles.

Ekaterina A. Dorokhova is a Candidate of Arts (PhD), ethnomusicologist, member of the Composers' Union of Russia, Senior Research Assistant at the Russian Gnessins' Music Academy and the State Institute for Art Studies, Research Consultant of the Folk Music Committee of the Composers' Union of Russia. She participated in the "Narodny Prazdnik" ["Folk Festivity"] ensemble (1982-1996) and was the author and director of its concert programs. She is the director of the “Russkaya muzyka” [“Russian Music”] ensemble, a member of the European Ethnomusicological Seminar, and a participant in seminars in Barcelona (1993), Oxford (1995), Rotterdam (1996) and Jerusalem (1998). She carried out over a thousand expeditions into the Arkhangelsk, Bryansk, Voronezh, Kursk, Orel, Smolensk, Sumy, Tver, Tula and Kharkov regions. Her scholarly interests are connected with traditional performance and the present-day life of folk music traditions. She was one of the authors of the textbook “Russkoye narodnoye muzykalnoye tvorchestvo” [“Russian Folk Music Creativity”] (Moscow, 2005).

Maria V. Drutskaya is a post-graduate student at the Department of Musical Pedagogy and Artistic Education of the Tambov State Musical-Pedagogical S.V. Rachmaninoff Institute and a faculty member at the College affiliated with the Tambov Musical-Pedagogical Institute.

Vera N. Dyomina holds the degree of Candidate of Arts (PhD) and is a senior professor of the Musical Management Department of the Rostov State S.V. Rachmaninoff Conservatory. Her research interests deal with studying manuscripts and published editions of landmarks of Russian musical art.

Irina L. Egorova is a Candidate of Arts (PhD), Professor at the Department of Folk Singing and Ethnomusicology of the Saratov State L.V. Sobinov Conservatory. She is a laureate of international and Russian festivals and competitions. She is the founder and artistic director of the municipal professional folk song ensemble “Blagodat” [“Grace”], which since its inception in 1998 has presented over 900 concerts and prepared over 50 thematic programs. She has participated in numerous Russian and international conferences and has had over of her research works published, among which is her monographic book “Ispolnitelsky stil Lidii Ruslanovoy” [“The performance Style of Lydia Ruslanova”] (Saratov, 2010), as well as collections of folk songs (Saratov, 2006, 2007, 2010). Her scholarly interests include the research of the intonation-semantic nature of the musical language of folk songs.

Sergei A. Eisenstadt is a Candidate of Arts (PhD), Professor at the Piano Department at the Far-Eastern State Academy for the Arts (Vladivostok), Merited Artist of the Russian Federation, Doctoral student at the Novosibirsk State M.I. Glinka Conservatory. The sphere of his research interests includes the art of piano playing in the East Asian region (China, Korea and Japan). He is a participant of numerous international and Russian conferences and has had publications in the journals “Problemy muzykalnoy nauki/Music Scholarship” and “Muzykalnaya akademiya.” He is the author of monographical research works: “Detskiy albom P.I. Tchaikovskogo” [“The ‘Children’s Album’ of Piotr Ilyich Tchaikovsky”]

(Moscow, 2009) and “Uchitel’ muzyki (zhizn’ i tvorchestvo Carla Czerny)” [“The Music Teacher (The Life and Art of Carl Czerny)”] (Moscow, 2010).

Yulia G. Filippova is a Faculty Member at the Department of Folk Singing and Ethnomusicology of the Saratov State L.V. Sobinov Conservatory, where she is a post-graduate student at the Department of Humanitarian Disciplines. The sphere of her research interests includes the phenomenon of St. Petersburg in the Russian artistic culture. She has participated in various musicological conferences, including the Russian Research Conference devoted to Boleslav Yavorsky in Saratov. Her articles have been published in the journals “Sovremennyye problemy nauki i obrazovaniya” [“Present-Day Problems of Scholarship and Education”] (Moscow), “Aktualnye problemy kultury, iskusstva i khudozhestvennogo obraza” [“Topical Problems of Culture, Art and the Artistic Image”] (“Orenburg”), “Myzkalnoye iskusstvo i nauka v sovremennom mire: paralleli i vzaimodeistviye” [“The Musical Art and Science in the Contemporary World: Parallels and Interaction”] (Astrakhan) and “Problemy muzykalnoy nauki/Music Scholarship.”

Natalia S. Gavrilova is an associate professor (docent) at the Department of World Musical Culture of the Maimonides State Classical Academy, a Merited Artist of the Russian Federation, a winner of several international competitions for pianists, a member of the Musical State Philharmonic Society and the artistic director of the Foundation of Spiritual Development “Art for Children.” She has gone on tours throughout Russia and other countries with solo recitals and orchestral concerts. She is presently engaged in performances of the M.N. Ermolova Moscow Drama Theater and the Evgeny Vakhtangov State Academic Theater. A number of articles written by her have been published in Delphis magazine (1996, 1997, 1998, 2007, 2008, 2011, 2012).

Dmitri B. Gorbatov holds a Master’s degree in Composition from the New England Conservatory (Boston, MA, USA). He is a translator at the Administration of Coordination of Programs for International Activities of the Department of International Cooperation at the Moscow State P. I. Tchaikovsky Conservatory. He has participated in a number of Russian and international musicological conferences and has written several dozens of articles, published in Internet journals.

Edward Green, PhD (NYU) has been a professor of composition and music history at the Manhattan School of Music since 1984. He received his PhD from New York University, and his doctoral dissertation dealt with the vocal music of Haydn’s and Mozart’s late periods. An award-winning composer, Dr. Green received a Grammy Award for his Piano Concertino in the category “The Best Contemporary Classical Composition.” Dr. Green is also a Senior Specialist in American Music in the Fulbright Foundation. In 2010, when he was a recipient of the Fulbright Grant, he gave a seminar on the music of John Cage at the Catholic University of Argentina. Dr. Green is an extensively published scholar, his articles dealing with a wide range of subjects, from Guido and Marcabru to Schoenberg and Scelsi. Dr. Green published the compilation of China and the West: The Birth of a New Music (published by Shanghai Conservatory Press) and prepared for publication the soon to be published compilation A Cambridge Companion to Duke Ellington. He is currently working on a new book, Experiencing the Beatles: A Listener's Companion for Scarecrow Press.

Inna V. Grinchenko is a post-graduate student at the Music Theory Department of the Rostov State S.V. Rachmaninoff Conservatory and a teacher at the Palace of Creativity for Children and Youth in Rostov-on-Don. The subject of her scholarly research is connected with the music of Rostov composers in the genres of small choral works. Her articles have been published in the journals “Mir obrazovaniya, nauki i kultyry” [“The World of Education, Scholarship and Culture”] and “Istoricheskiye, filosofskiy i yuridicheskiye nauki, kulturologiya i isusstvovdenie. Voprosy teorii i praktiki” [“Historical, Philosophical and Juridical Sciences, Cultural and Art Studies. Questions of Theory and Practice,”] and she is the author of a published book: “Khorovaya miniatyura: strukturny podkhod k analizu poeticheskogo i muzykalnogo textov” [“The Short Work for Chorus: a Structural Approach Towards Analysis of the Poetical and Musical Texts”].

Alexei P. Kartashov is a Post-graduate student at the Orenburg State L. and M. Rostropovich Institute for the Arts, where he had studied at the Department of Orchestral Folk Instruments. He is a teacher at the “Rodnik” [“Water Spring”] Children’s School for the Arts in Moscow. His research interests are focused upon the issues of performance and study of orchestral instruments and orchestration. His articles have been published in compilations of research works of the Orenburg State Institute for the Arts and the journal “Muzykobedeniye.”

Anna N. Koldayeva is a post-graduate student at the Music History Department of the Saratov State L.V. Sobinov Conservatory and a teacher of music theory disciplines at the Saratov Regional College for the Arts. The sphere of her scholarly interests is connected with studying the genre of the motet in the music of the Romanticist composers. She has participated in Russian musicological conferences (in 2010, 2012 and 2013), and has had publications of her articles, based on the materials of her presentations.

Larisa L. Krupina holds a degree of Candidate of Arts (PhD) and is an Associate Professor and an acting Professor of the Music Theory Department of the Voronezh State Academy of the Arts. The sphere of her research interests includes issues of counterpoint and form-generation in early music. Her monographic book “Evolutsiya fugi” [“The Evolution of the Fugue”] has been printed, and her articles devoted to musical forms, which have been published in various musical periodicals, including the journal “Muzykalnaya akademiya” and the periodical publication of the Gnesins’ Russian Musical Academy, “Protsey muzykalnogo tvorchestva” [“The Processes of Musical Creativity”]. Her textbook on counterpoint and tutorial manual “Doklasicheskiye muzykalnye formy: muzykalnoye formoobrazovaniye v Sredniye veka i Vozrozhdeniye” [“Pre-Classical Musical Forms: Musical Form-Generation during the Middle Ages and the Renaissance”] have been recommended by the Council for Education and Methodology for Higher Education for use in teaching in institutes for higher education.

Natalia M. Kuznetsova is a Candidate of Arts (PhD), Associate Professor at the Piano Department of the Ufa State Zagir Ismagilov Academy for the Arts and a Research Assistant at the Laboratory for Musical Semantics in Ufa. In 2005 she defended her dissertation for the degree of Candidate of Arts, titled “Tvorcheskoye vzaimodeystviye ispolnitelya s muzykalnym textom (na primere instruktivnykh sochineniy dlya klavira I.S. Baha)” [The Creative Interaction of the Performer with the Musical Text (On the Example of J.S. Bach’s Instructive Compositions for Clavier)]. She has had over 20 publications of her research works and has participated in a number of musicological conferences in Russia. The field of her research activities is the semantic organization of J.S. Bach’s compositions for clavier. The results of her research work has been actively incorporated into her tutorial practice as a piano instructor.

Nadezhda V. Lyamkina is a post-graduate student at the Music Theory Department of The Novosibirsk State M.I. Glinka Conservatory. Her research interests include Pythagorean theory, Neo-Platonism and Ancient Greek and Roman music theory.

Igor V. Macijevski is a composer, Doctor of Arts, Professor, Head of the Instrumentation Department at the Russian Institute of History of the Arts (St. Petersburg), Professor at the Composition Department of the Petrazavodsk State Conservatory, Merited Activist of the Arts of Ukraine (1999) and Poland (2003), academician at the International Academy of Informatization at the UN, corresponding member of the Russian Academy of Natural Sciences and member of the Composers’ Unions of Russia and Ukraine and of the International Council for Traditional Music of UNESCO, chairman of the Program Council of the Center for Folk and Sacred Music of Central-Eastern Europe (Lublin). He teaches, reads lectures and gives master-classes at institutes for higher education, institutes for scientific research and museums in Russia and other countries. His research work is carried out mainly in the sphere of the traditional instrumental music of Slavic, Finno-Ugric, Baltic and Turkic people. Over 200 artistic and research works of his have been published.

Olga V. Nemkova is a Candidate of Arts (PhD, Pro-rector for Research and Methodological Work, Professor and Head of the Choral Conducting Department at the Tambov State S.V. Rachmaninoff Musical Pedagogical Institute. She is currently working on her Doctoral dissertation at the Saratov State L.V. Sobinov Conservatory and directing a student chorus at a university in Tambov. She has participated in numerous Russian and international conferences. Her articles have been published in musicological compilations and journals (“Muzykalnaya akademiya,” “Muzykalnoye obozrenie,” etc.). Her monographic book “Obraz Bogomateri v yevropeyskoy culture: konstanty I metamorfozy” [The Image of the Virgin Mary in the European Artistic Culture: Constants and Metamorphoses] is currently being prepared for publication.

Anastasia Y. Orekhova is a post-graduate student at the Music Theory and Composition Department of the Rostov State S.V. Rachmaninoff Conservatory, where she is an assistant in the Research Center and where she graduated from, having studied at the Musical Management Department. The theme of her dissertation was “Filarmoniya kak organizator muzykalnoy zhizni provinstialnogo goroda: tvorchiskiy i upravlencheskiy aspekt (na primere deyatelnosti Rostovskoy gosudarstvennoy filarmonii) [“The Philharmonic Society as an Organizer of the Musical Life of a Provincial City: the Creative and Managerial Aspects (on the Example of the Activities of the Rostov State Philharmonic Society)].

Elena V. Pankina is a Candidate of Arts (PhD) and Associate Professor at the Music History Department of the Novosibirsk State M.I. Glinka Conservatory. Her chief scholarly interests are connected with the Western European secular contrapuntal vocal music of the Renaissance era. The results of her studies have been demonstrated in her presentations in musicological conferences and in her numerous publications.

Olga A. Pashina is a Doctor of Arts and a Research Secretary at the State Institute for Art Studies (Moscow). She has participated in international musicological symposiums and conferences in Russia, Poland, India, Macedonia, Czech Republic, Serbia and Bulgaria. She has organized over 60 folk music expeditions to the Arckhangelsk, Belgorod, Bryansk, Voronezh, Orel, Smolensk, Sumy, Pskov, Novgorod, Kaluga, Chernigov, Vitebsk, Gomel and Mogilev regions and the Republic of Komi. Her main publications include her monographic book: “Kalendarno-pessenny tsikl u vostchnykh slavyan” [“the Cycle of Calendar Songs of the Eastern Slavs”] (Moscow, 1998), “Smolensky muzykalno-etnograficheskiy sbornik. T. 1-3” [The Smolensk Musical Ethnographic Collection, Volumes 1-3] (Moscow, 2003-2005) and “Narodnoye muzykalnoye tvorchestvo: uchebnik dlya muzykalnykh vuzov” [“The Folk Music Legacy: Textbook for Musical Institutes for Higher Education”] (St. Petersburg, 2005).

Svetlana O. Pechyonkina is a post-graduate student at the Music History Department of the Saratov State L.V. Sobinov Conservatory. The theme of her research is devoted to the phenomenon of artistic individuality and its reflection in Mozart's string quartets. She has participated in Russian and international musicological conferences.

Sergey P. Polozov is a Candidate of Arts (PhD) and Professor at the Department of Music Theory and Composition of the Saratov State L.V. Sobinov Conservatory. He is a member of the Composers' Union of Russia. He has composed music for orchestra, chorus and theater, as well as chamber instrumental and vocal compositions. His field of research interests includes musical information science, application of computer technology to various forms of musical activities and informational processes in music, as well as history of the Orthodox Christian Old Believers in the Saratov region. He has had over sixty publications of his research works.

Ravil G. Rakhimov is a Doctor of Arts, Professor at the Department of Ethnomusicology at the Ufa State Zagir Ismagilov Academy for the Arts. She is engaged in the study of traditional musical instruments and instrumental monody. She has taken part in international and Russian conferences with presentations and master-classes of performance on rare musical instruments. She is the author of the monographic books: "Faktura bashkirskoi instrumental'noi melodii. Folklornoye issledovaniye" [The Texture of the Bashkir Instrumental Monody. A Folkloristic Research Book."] (2001), "Bashkirskaya narodnaya instrumentalnaya kultura" [The Bashkir Folk Instrumental Music Culture"] (2006), "Bashkirskiye instrumental'nye ansambli ustnoy traditsii: etnoorganologiya" [The Bashkir Instrumental Ensembles of the Oral Tradition: a Case of Ethnoorganology"] (2008) and "Bashkirskiye teptyari: istoriya odnoy rukopisi" [The Bashkir Teptyars: A History of one Manuscript"] (2012).

Tatiana B. Reznitskaya is an Associate Professor at the Department of Piano Major and Preparation of Ensemble Performance of the Orenburg State L. And M. Rostropovich Institute for the Arts. Her research interests include the intonational laws of development of the musical text upon interaction with poetical preimages in the vocal compositions of Hugo Wolf. Her articles devoted to this topic have been published in various periodicals and compilations. She has tested the results of her research in her teaching and concert activities.

Tatiana S. Rudichenko is a Doctor of Arts, Professor at the Music History Department at the Rostov State S.V. Rachmaninoff Conservatory. The sphere of activities is collecting and studying folk music. The sphere of her scholarly and pedagogical activities is connected with ethnomusicology, ethnography, and the history of Russian musical culture. She has written over 110 research works, which include the monographical book “Donskaya kazachya pesnya v istoricheskom razviti” [“The Don Cossack Song in Historical Development”] (2004), articles published in musicological publications and journals, tutorial manuals and collections of folk songs.

Elena Y. Serova is an Associate Professor at the Department of Popular Music Performance of the National Academy of Managers of Personnel of Culture and the Arts (Kiev, Ukraine), where she is a post-graduate student of the Department of Music Theory, History, Culture and Musicology. The theme of her dissertation was “The Art of Minimalism in the Spatial-Temporal Dimensions of Culture of Postmodernism.” She is a member of the National Composers’ Union of Ukraine, where she is the head of the Young Composers’ Section. She is the winner of the L. Revutsky Prize (2003). She has written over 50 musical compositions in various genres, which have been performed in the concert halls of Ukraine, Russia, Poland, Austria, England, Switzerland and Belarus. She has participated in the stipend program “Gaude Polonia” set up by the Ministry of Culture of the Republic of Poland (2009).

Irina V. Shevtsova is a post-graduate student at the Department of Interdisciplinary Specializations for Musicologists of the Moscow State P. I. Tchaikovsky Conservatory of the Moscow State P.I. Tchaikovsky Conservatory and a cellist. The theme of her dissertation is “The Compositions for Cello by Sofia Gubaidulina: Problems of Musical Content, Composition and the Interpretation of the Instrument.” She is a winner of the First International Valery Gavrilin Competition for Youth and a stipend recipient from the Ministry of Culture of the Russian Federation. She is a member of the string quartet “Franz-Quartet” and an artist of the orchestra of the Moscow “Novaya Opera” theater. She has participated in the “Moscow Autumn” music festival and the “Verbier Festival” in Switzerland, as well as in a number of musicological conferences.

Evgenia A. Sklyarova is a Research Assistant at the A.M. Mekhnetsov Center for Folklore and Ethnography and Faculty Member at the Ethnomusicology Department at the St. Petersburg State N.A. Rimsky-Korsakov Conservatory. Since 2003 she has managed complex folk music expeditions on the territory of the Udmurtian Republic. Special attention is given by her to the song culture of the Russian old-time residents of Udmurtia.

Olga A. Svetlova is a Candidate of Arts (PhD), Vice-Rector for Research and Creative Work and Associate Professor at the Music History Department of the Novosibirsk State M.I. Glinka Conservatory (Academy). She graduated from the Novosibirsk Conservatory, where she studied at the Music Theory and Composition Department and its post-graduate program with Professor B.A. Shindin. Her scholarly interests are focused on the singing culture of the Siberian Orthodox Christian Old Believers, the modern practice of church service honoring the saints, as well as hagiographic cycles in church service. She has had a number of her articles published and has participated in the writing of a collective monographic work “Traditions of Sacred Singing in the Culture of the Orthodox Christian Old Believers of the Altai Region.”

Galina V. Tavlai holds a degree of Candidate of Arts (PhD) and is an Associate Professor at the Department of Music by Finno-Ugric Peoples of the Petrazavodsk State A.K. Glazunov Conservatory, as Senior Research Assistant of the Institute for Art Studies, Ethnography and Folklore of the Belorussian Academy of Sciences, an Associate Professor at the Department of Music of Finno-Ugric Peoples of the Petrazavodsk State A.K. Glazunov Conservatory and a member of the Composers’ Union of the Republic of Belarus. Her main subject for research is the song culture of Byelorussians residing in Lithuania, Poland and Latvia. She wrote a book “Belorusskoye kupalye: obryad, pesnya” [“Byelorussian Holiday Traditions: Ritual and Song”] (1986), a number of sections of the four-volume edition of the series: “Belorusskoye narodnoye tvorchestvo” [“The Byelorussian Folk Legacy”] (Minsky, 1984-1997) and other works (over 60 of her research works have been published). She is currently working on her book “Regionalnoye I lokalnoye v pessenom folklore severo-zapadnykh belorusskikh pogranychiy (sravnitelno tipologicheskiy aspekt)” [“The Regional and Local Elements in the Folk Songs of the North-Western Byelorussian Boundary Regions (A Comparative-Typological Aspect).”]

Natella V. Tchakhvadze is a Doctor of Arts, Professor of the Department of Music Theory and History at the Magnitogorsk State M.I. Glinka Conservatory. At the center of her research interests are the problems of interaction of the Russian and Eastern cultures, space and time in music, as well as the manifestations of national mentality in art. Her research has been demonstrated in publications and presentations on international conferences in Moscow, Petrazavodsk, Ekaterinburg and Magnitogorsk. Her book “Rossiya i vostok: mental’nost’ otrazhyonnaya v iskusstve” [“Russia and the East: a Mentality Reflected in Art”] was published in Magnitogorsk in 2009. Her latest works include articles in the journals “Muzykovedenie” (2011) and “European Social Science Journal” (2012).

Alexandra G. Trukhanova is a Candidate of Arts (PhD) and Associate Professor at the Classical Choral Conducting Department of the Saratov State L.V. Sobinov Conservatory. The sphere of her research activities includes studying late 20th century sacred music. She has participated in Russian and international musicological conferences and has written over 30 articles. The basic results of her research work are being published in compilations of articles in Moscow, Rostov-on-Don, Volgograd, Astrakhan and Saratov.

Olga A. Urvantseva is a Doctor of Arts, Professor at the Music Theory and Music History Department at the Magnitogorsk State M.I. Glinka Conservatory. Her scholarly interests are focused around the field of sacred concert music by Russian composers and are connected with study of stylistic models. She has participated in numerous international and Russian conferences. Her research works have been published in the journal “Problemy muzykalnoy nauki/Music Scholarship,” as well as musicological compilations in Ekaterinburg, Orenburg, Chelyabinsk and Magnitogorsk. She has had two monographic books published devoted to stylistic modeling in the music of Russian composers of the 19th – 21st centuries.

Roman F. Zelinsky (1935–2013) was a Doctor of Arts, Professor at the Department of Music of the Finno-Ugric Peoples at the Petrozavodsk State A.K. Glazunov Conservatory, composer and folklorist, Merited Activist of the Arts of the Republic of Karelia and a member of the Composers’ Union of the Republic of Karelia. His scholarly work was carried out in two directions: studying Karelian and Finnish folk music (12 works published, including the monographic book “Karelskie pesni kalevalskogo kraja” [“Karelian Songs from the Land of the Kalevala”] (Petrozavodsk, 2008), and Bashkir instrumental music (23 works published, including the monographic book “Bashkirskaya narodnaya instrumentalnaya muzyka” [“Bashkir Folk Instrumental Music”] (Ufa, 2003). He gathered a significant collection of folk music during 7 folk music expeditions in the southern Ural Mountains (about 1100 notated folk songs) and in 4 expeditions in Karelia (over 350 notated folk songs). He participated in musicological conferences in Moscow, St. Petersburg and other cities.

Anastasia V. Zernina is a post-graduate student at the Music History Department of the The Rostov State S.V. Rachmaninoff Conservatory, where she is also a Methodologist at the Laboratory of Folk Music. The theme of her dissertation is “The Singing Tradition of the Dukhobor Communities of the Rostov Region.” She participated in the Fourth International School of Young Folklorists “Folklore and Ethno-Cultural Identity” (St. Peterburg) and the School for Young Scholars “Ustnaya traditsiya v prostranstve mezhdistsiplinarnykh: istochnokovaya baza I issledovatel'skiy instrumentary” [The Oral Tradition in the Domain of Interdisciplinary Studies: the Source Base and the Research Instruments”] (Rostov-on-Don). She has participated in international musicological conferences.